ARGUMENT.

KING CONOR MACNESSA, a pagan Irish Chieftain, was wounded in the head by a ball* while fighting against a neighbouring tribe which had raided his territory. He was carried home as dead, but revived, only to learn that unless he led a life of absolute seclusion, death would ensue. Living, therefore, a life of quiet and enforced retirement, he was one day startled by a great upheaval of nature, and a darkness which covered the land “from the sixth to the ninth hour.” When it had subsided, he sent for his chief Druid asking for an explanation, and offering to appease the wrath of the gods by a sacrifice. The Druid (to whom it had been miraculously revealed) told him that there was but one God, “the Eternal,” and unfolded to him the story of the Christ and His sacrifice for Mankind. King Conor, filled with love for this unknown Saviour, and longing to help or to avenge Him, rushed to the armoury for his weapons, and forgetful of his wound, hurried on his mission, when in the excitement the ball leaped from his forehead, and he fell dead.

* The pagan Irish warriors sometimes took the brains out of champions whom they had slain, mixed them up with lime, and rolled them into balls, which they preserved as trophies. It was with one of these balls, which had been abstracted from his armoury, that Conor MacNessa was wounded.

KING CONOR.

'Twas a day full of sorrow for Ulster when Conor MacNessa went forth
To punish the clansmen of Connaught, who dared to take spoil from the North ;
For his men brought him back from the battle scarce better than one that was dead,
With the brain ball of Mesgedra* buried two-thirds of its depth in his head.
His royal physician bent o'er him, great Fingen, who often before
Staunch'd the war-battered bodies of heroes, and built them for battle once more,
And he looked on the wound of the monarch, and heark'd to his low-breathèd sighs,
And he said, " In the day when that missile is loosed from his forehead, he dies."

" Yet long midst the people who love him King Conor MacNessa may reign,
If always the high pulse of passion be kept from his heart and his brain ;
And for this I lay down his restrictions :—no more from this day shall his place
Be with armies, in battles, or hostings, or leading the van of the chase ;
For if heart-thrilling joyance, or anger, awhile o'er his being have power,
The ball will start forth from his forehead, and surely he dies in that hour."

Oh ! woe for the valiant King Conor, struck down from the summit of life
While glory unclouded shone round him, and regal enjoyment was rife—
Shut out from his toils and his duties, condemned to ignoble repose,
No longer to friends a true helper, no longer a scourge to his foes !
He, the strong-handed smiter of champions, the piercer of armour and shields,
The foremost in earth-shaking onsets, the last out of blood-sodden fields —
The mildest, the kindest, the gayest, when revels ran high in his hall—
Oh, well might his people, who loved him, feel gloomy and sad for his fall !

So years had passed over, when, sitting 'midst silence like that of the tomb,
A terror crept through him, as sudden the noonlight was blackened with gloom.
One red flare of lightning blazed brightly, illumining the landscape around !
One thunder-peal roared through the mountains, and rumbled and crashed underground !
He heard the rocks bursting asunder ! the trees tearing up by the roots !
And loud, through the horrid confusion, the howling of terrified brutes.
From the walls of his tottering palace came screamings of terror and pain,
And he saw crowding thickly around him the ghosts of the foes he had slain !

And as soon as the sudden commotion that shuddered through nature had ceased,
The king sent for Barach, his druid, and said : " Tell me truly, O priest,
What magical arts have created this scene of wild horror and dread ?
What has blotted the blue sky above us, and shaken the earth that we tread ?
Are the gods that we worship offended ? what crime or what wrong has been done ?
Has the fault been committed in Erin, and how may their favour be won ?
What rites may avail to appease them ? what gifts on their altars should smoke ?
Only say, and the offering demanded we lay by your consecrate oak."

* See foot-note previous page.

KING CONOR.

“ O King,” said the white-bearded druid, “ the truth unto me has been shown,
There lives but one God, the Eternal ; far up in high heaven is His throne.
He looked upon men with compassion, and sent from His kingdom of light
His Son, in the shape of a mortal, to teach them and guide them aright.
Near the time of your birth, O King Conor, the Saviour of mankind was born,
And since then in the kingdoms far eastward, He taught, toiled, and prayed, till this morn,
When wicked men seized Him, fast bound Him with nails to a cross, lanced His side,
And that moment of gloom and confusion was earth’s cry of dread when He died !

“ O King, He was gracious and gentle, His heart was all pity and love,
And for men He was ever beseeching the grace of His Father above ;
He helped them, He healed them, He blessed them ; He laboured that all might attain
To the true God’s high kingdom of glory, where never comes sorrow or pain ;
But they rose in their pride and their folly, their hearts filled with merciless rage,
That only the sight of His lifeblood fast poured from His heart could assuage :
Yet while on the cross-beams uplifted, His body racked, tortured, and riven,
He prayed—not for justice or vengeance, but asked that His foes be forgiven.”

With a bound from his seat rose King Conor, the red flush of rage on his face ;
Fast he ran through the hall for his weapons, and snatching his sword from its place,
He rushed to the woods, striking wildly at boughs, that fell down with each blow,
And he cried : “ Were I midst the vile rabble, I’d cleave them to earth, even so !
With the strokes of a high King of Erin, the whirls of my keen-tempered sword,
I would save from their horrible fury that mild and that merciful Lord.”
His frame shook and heaved with emotion : the brain-ball leaped forth from his head,
And commanding his soul to that Saviour, King Conor MacNessa fell dead.
